It's known that Chinese women in the past weren't given the right to receive a formal education. But this doesn't mean that they made no efforts to learn. One of the proofs is Nüshu—literally meaning "female script"(女性书法)—a written language that was used by women in Jiangyong county, Hunan province.

This script was only used by women. It was developed from written Chinese. Hundreds of years ago, Nüshu was taught at home by elderly women to girls. And during gatherings in villages, women would use it to write poems to express the emotions they were hiding from men. People often regard the characters as "symbols of some secret cults(邪教)". But the fact is that many old poems written in Nüshu talked about the women's difficulties in life and how they made it through hardships. The words were full of encouragement and positive energy.

After women got the right to attend school, Nüshu gradually lost its functionality(功能). But the spirit of Nüshu is still important and meaningful for our society in modern times. Zhao Liming, a professor at Tsinghua University, started a project to keep Nüshu alive because she was worried that this ancient culture will soon disappear. One of the project's recent achievements is an app designed by Talkmate, to teach Nüshu to more people. The app has been showed to people in September during the first Beijing International Language & Culture Expo. Zhao expects the app to present a true image of Nüshu to the public in order that more people will be interested in Nüshu.

These people come from the poorest places of Kenya. They were beggars and workers on the farm. However, they are people with dreams and hopes. Thanks to Jamii Bora, thousands of them are realizing their dreams.

When Ingrid Munro worked in the UK she learned about the lives of the poor，so she always tried her best to help the poor. And in 1988，Munro and her Canadian husband had adopted(收养)a homeless boy. This boy had been run over by a bus and was unable to walk freely. Munro's learning about the hard lives of the poor increased when she adopted the boy's two brothers two years later.

In 1999 she decided to start a small club in Kenya. The members would be 50 women，beggars who had been kind to children. No one imagined it could become so successful that it would change into a bank called Jamii Bora Bank. Munro did not expect that it would turn out to be such a great success. Instead of employing(雇佣) experts，she has trained those women herself. And she employs ex-beggars，the ones who joined them in the very early days and have come out of poverty. She teaches these beggars how to do everything from the beginning. What makes this bank different from others is the way they treat the borrowers. They help these poor people educate their children，and help with housing. They even teach business skills so that people can live a better life.

How fit are your teeth? Are you lazy about brushing them? We brush our teeth every day but few people know how well we're brushing. Today，a French company has introduced an electric toothbrush，which can work wirelessly(无线地) with a smartphone. It's called the Kolibree toothbrush. It has different models，and will cost from ＄99 to ＄200. The US is the first target market.

Users download an app and connect via Bluetooth，and the Kolibree will record：
1. the time you spent brushing teeth. 2. whether all areas of your mouth are reached.

3. whether you brush up and down instead of just side to side. Then it will send the information to a mobile phone via Bluetooth, telling you whether you have brushed in a proper way. The Kolibree records your progress and scores your brushing way to help you improve brushing habits. It's kind of like having a private dentist actually watch your brushing on a day-to-day basis.

The toothbrush can also talk to other apps on your phone, so developers could create a game controlled by your toothbrush. When you brush your teeth, you can score your points for beating the monsters in your teeth. That's really very interesting. The Kolibree toothbrush is created to be smart but also fun.

The Kolibree toothbrush was invented by Thomas Serval. He says the idea of inventing it came from his experience as a father. He would come home from work and ask his kids if they had brushed their teeth. They always answered "yes", but Thomas used to find their toothbrush heads dry. He decided that a kind of brush was needed to tell him how well they brushed their teeth.

Thomas says that one day, it'll be possible to use a brushing unit with a camera. The camera can even examine holes in your teeth while you brush.

The Notting Hill Carnival(狂欢) is regarded as the largest street party in Europe. The Carnival, which takes place in the streets of the west London district, was made famous by the movie Notting Hill starring Julia Roberts and Hugh Crant.

This great festival began with the Black immigrants(移民) from the Caribbean, particularly from Trinidad, where the Carnival tradition is very strong. At that time, they didn't have working opportunities and their housing conditions were poor. So people there created a festival to fight against racism(种族主义). When the Notting Hill Carnival first started，around 500 people attended the Caribbean festival. Today it attracts hundreds of thousands to London.

This holiday always falls on the last Sunday of August and ends on the following Monday. There are scores of massive "sound systems"，many beautiful and big floats(游行彩车) and steel drum bands(钢鼓乐队). There are hundreds of stalls(货摊) along the streets of the area selling all kinds of food and drinks including Caribbean specialties(特产).

Notting Hill Carnival is completely free，but a certain amount of money is needed when you go to the parties and warm-ups at bars and clubs. It is really wonderful that so many people can come together for one weekend of eating, laughter and music—forgetting about life's troubles for 48 hours.
